MOBS FIGHT POLICE IN JORDAN'S CITIES

Council to Take Steps Against Park Vandalism

Full-time Policeman Urged In Area Near the City Park

Monessen City Council this morning took under consideration a recommendation to appoint a "full-fledged" policeman to patrol the City Park in an effort to stop the wanton vandalism that has been prevalent in the park the past several years.

The recommendation was made by Councilman John Molnar, who said,

"As Director of Parks, I have been confronted for the past several years with an extreme case of vandalism in our parks This has not only been an expense to the city, but it is a practice that must be stopped at all costs. I have tried every means to correct this situation, and I feel now there is only one solution

"We will have to have a full-fledged officer police the area and make arrests on the spot"

Plan for Action

Members of Council agreed with Molnar and stated they will meet with Chief of Police Michael Kuvaka to take action on the recommendation.

Molnar told Council that a "good deal", of money is spent each year replacing what the vandals destroy. He said that shrubbery and trees are destroyed or stolen "almost before they have time to grow"

Council was informed by federal and state mine inspectors that at least $10 000 will be needed to control the underground mine fires in the vicinity of Lookout Ave

Frank Griffith federal inspector said the federal government will supply 50 per cent of the funds and the state and city will share the remaining 50 per cent

He suggested that work begin immediately to control the fires He said there is no imminent danger but it would be less costly if work was begun now.

Has Funds Available

A J Nann, state inspector said he has funds available to start boring holes into the surface to determine the intensity of the fires He said that after the holes are bored a mixture of slag and water will be pumped into the openings to seal off air

Nann suggested that barricades be placed around several large depressions in the area to prevent children from possible injury Council said it would do so

The City will make applications immediately to both the federal government and state for financial aid to control the fires.

The Streets Department was authorized to purchase a new street sweeper. Director David Victoria said the Wayne Co submitted the low bid of $9,220, including the $2,400 allowed for the trade-in of the present sweeper

Two bids were submitted for a new garbage truck Murphy Ford Sales made a bid of $4 790 and the John L Gibson Garage submitted one six dollars less, or $4,784.

Two bids were also received for road oil. Barrell Construction asked 14 9 cents per gallon and Westmoreland Paving 14 7 per gallon.

Councilman John Kotch, Jr., gave a report on a recent survey he made with Alex Newell, West Penn Power Co official, on the proposed new lighting system for downtown Monessen. The two inspected the new fluorescent light-

Parente Protests Inference About Parking Authority

Mayor Hugo J. Parente this morning at a meeting of City Council took issue with a political advertisement that appeared in The Daily Independent yesterday.

The advertisement referred to by Parente was one entitled 'Parente's White Elephant". It was in reference to the downtown parking plaza which was erected on the recommendation of the Monessen Parking Authority last November

John R. Stieska who is opposing the reelection of Parente as mayor, placed the advertisement

Parente said he was not taking issue with the "Parente White Elephant" part of the story but with a paragraph that appeared below the headline The paragraph read:

"The Parente-Controlled Parking Authority has burdened the taxpayers of Monessen for years to come. In fact at the present rate the plaza will never pay for itself and will cost the taxpayers thousands of dollars in interest on the $350 000 loan"

In his statement this morning Parente said,

"I do not mind the political inference made towards me But I do resent the inference made to members of the Parking Authority.

Gary Children Stricken with Mystery Cramps

GARY, Ind (UP) — A medical official said today "some sort of acute poisoning" apparently is responsible for an outbreak of mysterious stomach cramps which have killed two children and hospitalized seven others

Dr. Samuel J. Brady, Gary Health Board secretary, said Steel city residents have become bitter as a result of the outbreak and "I suppose everybody in Gary has been suffering abdominal cramps"

The stomach attacks began during the week end when Joan Smith, 3, and her brother, Dwight, 18 months, died of the ailment at Gary Methodist Hospital. The cause of their deaths has not yet been determined

The victims' four brothers and sisters, who also were stricken, are in a Chicago hospital where officials say they are recovering.

Two neighbors of the Smiths, Gregory McLoud, 7, and his brother, Arthur, 14, were hospitalized with cramps Monday, and Alonzo Jacob, 9, who lives about a mile from the Smith home, was taken to a hospital Tuesday.

Brady said it appeared the children were suffering from poisoning.

"It's possible it all stems from a single cause," he said, "but so far we don't know what it is."

Sgt. Johns, a veteran of 10 years, was visiting his foster parents in Monongahela, prior to reenlisting, according to police.

The mishap occurred as Sergeant Johns, travelling west on Route 31, ran into the left front side of the tractor-trailer, approaching in the opposite direction, the police report stated.

Car Demolished

The force of the impact knocked the wheels loose from the trailer, completing demolishing the soldier's car.

Police reported that Sergeant Johns suffered a fractured skull, two broken legs, broken arm and other injuries

The driver of the tractor-trailer was identified as Dreppard Leone Roach, 29, of Box 76 Morristown Ohio. He was injured, police said

Railways Talks Are Broken Off

PITTSBURGH (UP) — Joint negotiations on a new pension agreement for Pittsburgh Railways Co employes broke off Tuesday night when the firm refused to submit issues to arbitration

The three-year pension pact between the company and 2,700 members of Division 85, Street, Electric Railways and Motor Coach Employes Union expires next Tuesday. The general contract expires next August.

Railways President C. D. Palmer said he would not jeopardize the firm's fare structure on a decision made by an outside party.

Gilbert A. Teitel, union business agent, said the company's refusal to submit issues to arbitration is part of a "campaign of calculated confusion."

Palmer offered to continue the three - year agreement with an amendment eliminating the arbitration provision.

Praises Ike for Stand On Labor Racketeering

WASHINGTON (UP)—Chairman John L. McClellan of the Senate Rackets Committee today forecast Congress may enact legislation this year to curb labor racketeering.

McClellan commended President Eisenhower's plans to submit bills to current session of Congress to strike at misuse of union funds and racketeering in American organized labor

The President called Secretary of Labor James P. Mitchell to meet with him Thursday at the vacation White House in Augusta, Ga., to discuss the legislation.

McClellan said he believes the administration is moving as a result of his committee's sensational investigation of the Teamsters Union.

He said he did not know what legislation the administration would propose. But he noted that so far he has mentioned possible legislation on two broad lines?"

—To preserve the democratic processes in unions"

—To insure proper use and accounting of union funds including supervision of the way they are invested"

McClellan said that in those two areas legislation might be enacted before Congress adjourns" this year.

Sen. Irving M. Ives (R-N Y., vice chairman of the Rackets Committee, Tuesday night expressed concern that some very anti-labor" legislation might result from the committee's investigation of labor racketeering

We must clean up abuses" he said. But we must not go to extreme that would hurt the honest law abiding decent working men and women who make up the great body of American labor."

The administration has recommended three times since 1954 that Congress enact legislation to protect union health and welfare funds However, it now is considering broader legislation.

Many Political Headaches In County Judicial Tangle

The legal complications of the unique situation involving Westmoreland County's judiciary were close to being straightened out today.

But the political complications promise to continue producing conversation — and headaches — for months to come

The situation developed when with two vacancies on the common pleas court occurring in the regular order, a third judge, George H McWherter, died last week.

Each major party will nominate two candidates for the regular vacancies at the May 21 primary election Six candidates are contesting these nominations, and all of them are filed on both parties, which is permissible in the case of judicial candidates.

But in the November general election three judges will be elected

County Opinion

In the meantime, Gov George M Leader, a Democrat, could appoint a judge to replace Judge McWherter for the balance of this year. The appointee would not necessarily need to be a candidate for election to a full term

County Solicitor P. K Jones, of New Kensington, told The Daily Independent today that he is preparing to advise the County Commissioners on the law which applies in the case of the McWherter vacancy.

According to Jones's interpretation, the vacancy must be filled by the voters at the November election, and the successful candidate would serve a full 10-year term.

There had been some impression among attorneys and politicians that the candidate elected in November would serve only the balance of Judge McWherter's term, which is about four and a half years.

Jones will advise the commissioners, he said, that the political parties may nominate candidates for the McWherter vacancy any time up to 45 days before the general election on Nov. 5

The nominations will be made in accordance with the rules of each party, the attorney said, but he was not sure whether these require a convention of all members of the county committees or whe-

Trial of 'Pike Figures Cleared For Early May

HARRISBURG (UP — District Attorney Huette F. Dowling today said a state Supreme Court decision clears the way for trial in May of 23 persons indicted in the investigation of the affairs of the Pennsylvania Turnpike Commission.

The Supreme Court in Philadelphia Monday rejected the appeals of 11 of the defendants seeking dismissal of criminal charges filed against them

Dowling said he planned to bring the men to trial in Dauphin County Criminal Court beginning May 27.

Twenty two of the defendants were charged by a Dauphin County grand jury with criminal conspiracy in connection with an alleged plot to defraud the commission of almost 20 million dollars through contracts to fill in abandoned mines under the Northeastern Extension

They include suspended Commissioner James F Torrance, Export, and former commission Chairman Thomas J Evans, Coaldale.

Commission Chairman G Franklin McSorley, Pittsburgh, was also suspended from his turnpike post following indictment on a charge of misconduct in office, for allegedly supplying a chauffeur to Evans after Evans left the agency

Girls' Testimony Will Be Used Against Tavern

Washington County District Attorney Michael A Hanna is planning to prosecute the owner of a Carroll Township tavern as the result of testimony of two teenage girls involved in a morals case.

Hanna said yesterday he would prosecute the owners of Jack's Tavern charging them with sales to minors.

Two teenage girls, one of the the victim in an alleged rape last September said they have been served in the tavern

Hanna's announcement occasioned some surprise in view of his past reticence to prosecute cases in which drinking and crime were involved He has tangled several times with Judge George T. Cummins over this issue

"This is different," Hanna said "These girls were the victims of an alleged crime In the other cases where I did not want to prosecute, it was a matter of someone drinking in an establishment and then going out and committing a robbery or a burglary or some other crime

"I don't think the business place, if it was legitimate should be prosecuted for sales to these criminals under those circumstances"

Robert Atkinson, of Elizabeth, was indicted yesterday on the rape charge in connection with one of the two girls, 16 at the time of the alleged assault

Leftists May Try Ousting Hussein; Civil War Near

By UNITED PRESS

Stone-throwing mobs battled police in Jordan's cities today in a leftist attempt to overthrow the government of pro-Western Premier Hussein El Khalidi. The nation appeared near open civil war.

King Hussein's throne itself was threatened as loyal Arab Legionnaires sought to halt the mobs of Palestinians who wish to link Jordan's fate with Egypt and pro-Communist Syria.

The demonstrations—and general strikes which paralyzed the desert nation—took an anti-American tone and there were steady chants of "down with Eisenhower... down with the doctrine"

Dent's Shepherd Influences Vote

HARRISBURG (UP) — The Great Dane barked his way into the House of Representatives Tuesday night with an official pat from the state Senate.

A bill proposing that the Great Dane be designated Pennsylvania's official dog passed the Senate by a 27-17 vote, over the objections of the German Shepherd "lobby."

Leading the dissenters was Senate Minority Leader John H. Dent (D-Westmoreland,) who gave as his reason:

"My shepherd wouldn't speak to me if I voted for this bill."

Ernest T. Weir, Steel Executive, To Leave Post

PITTSBURGH (UP)—Ernest T Weir, 81, one of the steel industry's 'elder statesmen", today announced his retirement as chairman and chief executive officer of National Steel Corp., which he founded and built into the nation's fifth largest producer

In a letter read to the annual stockholders meeting of the company, Weir, a veteran of 67 years in the steel business, said he was willing to remain as a director and consultant of the firm, but added

"I feel that I should no longer remain active as chairman of the board"

Weir, who has been in ill health recently, said he will recommend to the directors that Thomas E. Millsop, National Steel president, assume the duties of chief executive officer

He said he also will recommend the election of an outstanding man as chairman of the board. Weir did not disclose his choice other than to say he was sure the board will be pleased with my selection."

Weir, who past January suffered a heart attack, expressed regret that he was unable to attend today's annual meeting In the 28 years of National Steel's existence, he said he had missed only one other meeting, when he was in Europe

"Naturally after my long connection with National Steel Corp., from its organization, and with Weirton Steel Co (the predecessor's name) since its formation in 1905, I feel a deep regret that this action is necessary on my part," Weir said in his letter.

Catholics Forbidden to Listen to Billy Graham

NEW YORK (UP)— Roman Catholics were warned today that they are expressly forbidden to listen to evangelist Billy Graham in Madison Square Garden, on radio or television or to read his books of sermons

The Rev John J Kelly, director of the Bureau of Information of the National Catholic Welfare Conference writing in the Homiletic and Pastoral Review, a magazine for Roman Catholic priests said there is no reason to admire in Graham's preaching

But he said Graham preaches "heresy" in his insistence that there is no one denomination which is the true church of Christ

"Catholics are not permitted to participate in Protestant religious services," Father Kelly wrote.

He said the Reverend Graham's published works contain doctrines which are either false in themselves or false because they are incomplete and thus "fall within the scope of the index and reading them is forbidden by canon law"

"Catholics need not tune in on Billy's radio and television programs," Father Kelly wrote. So-called well constructed are his sermons so interwoven is true and false doctrine so forceful and persuasive is his style that even a fairly well instructed Catholic may be deceived"

Father Kelly said that despite the church's position, many Roman Catholics have listened to and read Graham preachings For all Roman Catholics, Father Kelly wrote, Billy is a danger to the faith."

False Affidavit Is Admitted

WASHINGTON (UP)—A dope-addicted Detroit prostitute testified today that a deputy forced her to make a false affidavit against one of the Senate Rocket Committee's star witnesses in its investigation of Portland, Ore., rackets and vice

She said she was threatened with rape some time she did not sign the affidavit

The witness, Mrs Kathleen LaCourt Weeks, told the committee the statements she made against Portland rackets King James B. Brandon and Jimmy Evans were false.

Mrs Weeks told of the threat in testimony before the Senate Labor Rackets Committee last month by Mayor Terry D Schrunk of Portland. It accused Elkins of taking profits from prostitution, using narcotics, and "doctoring" tape recordings which Elkins had given as evidence against Teamsters Union officials and Schrunk.

College Program Opposed

HARRISBURG (UP)—The Republican controlled Legislature today gave a chilly reception to Gov. George M. Leader's proposed comprehensive college scholarship program to be financed by a one-cent soft drink tax.

House Majority Leader Albert W. Johnson (R-McKean) said the "give away" of 5,000 free scholarships was "another step toward a welfare state."

"The state has to draw the line somewhere on how far it will go into financing education," he said.

Johnson also said the program presented by the governor in a special message would require "serious study" to determine whether the spending of 35 million dollars each biennium on higher education was constitutional.

He indicated the GOP would stand firm on its "hold the line" on new taxes program, contending any support the governor's proposal received would have to come from the Democratic side.

"I imagine the Democrats will introduce a soft drink tax, but I don't think there are enough votes in the House to pass it," he said. The GOP holds a comfortable 126-83 majority in that chamber.

House Democrats also conceded there was little chance of passing an additional tax, regardless of the merit of the program.

Bills Later

The governor's program, expected to be introduced in the Legislature later this week, would:

—Award 5,000 competitive college scholarships to high school seniors annually.

—Create a revolving fund to make educational loans to students on the basis of scholastic ability combined with need.

—Establish junior colleges within daily commuting distance of the state's college-age persons where adequate college facilities are not available.

The program would be financed by a one-cent excise tax on soft drinks or "any other tax program" adequate to carry the burden. The proposed "pop" tax would return 35 million dollars each biennium to completely finance the program at the peak of operation.

The tax would be diverted into a revolving fund to award scholarships beginning with the 1958-59 school year. Awards of $200 to $800 yearly would be granted to students entering junior colleges, four year colleges and universities. Both public and parochial high school students would be eligible for the competitive scholarship examinations.

Judges Don't Work Hard, Survey Claims

PHILADELPHIA (UP) —Judges don't work hard enough and a number of lawyers have too many cases to work them effectively, according to a year-long study conducted by a team from the University of Pennsylvania Law School.

The report on the study of court procedure released Tuesday said that many lengthy court delays are the fault of judges and lawyers.

The findings of the team recommended that judges give "little cases" involving $500 to $1,000 an even break with "big cases" of corporations. It said $500 may seem insignificant to a busy lawyer, but it can be important to the person involved.

The report stated that a small group of lawyers have too many cases to handle them efficiently. The study found that 11 law firms in Philadelphia were involved in 40 per cent of the cases listed.

The report criticized judges on this situation. It was pointed out that if one lawyer has more than he can handle, some of his cases just can't be brought to trial, and judges should realize it and force attorneys to clear up the backlog.

The team's study covered the counties of Allegheny, Dauphin, Carbon, Wayne, Franklin, Montgomery, and Philadelphia.

It said a survey in Philadelphia's City Hall disclosed judges averaged about four hours a day on the bench during jury trials, and two and a half hours on the bench in non-jury cases. This was termed a "substantial waste of time."

The report revealed that 3,700 cases were on trial lists in Philadelphia in 1953-54, and that by 1956, 579 of these cases were not completed. It also added that "top priority" should be given to the establishment of an administrative office for all of the state courts.

Kotch also requested Council to invite a representative of the Pennsylvania Economy League to make a survey of the city's fire alarm system. He said the growth of the city requires a "better and more modern system."

Dr. Frank Tucci, a Belle Vernon chiropractor who resides in Monessen, addressed Council this morning on water fluoridation.

Dr. Tucci, who is opposed to fluoridation, gave a partial report of why he is against it and requested Council that he be given additional time at a future meeting to continue his report.

He claims it is more injurious than it is beneficial.

A Monessen Committee for Water Fluoridation was formed several weeks ago and has had several meetings with various organizations in an effort to have fluoride placed in the community's water. Those in favor of fluoridation claim it curbs or prevents tooth decay among children.

County

ther the party executive committees could act.

In either case, Democratic County Chairman Jay W. Kromer, who is also a county commissioner, and Republican Chairman Edwin A. Swink told The Independent that nothing would be done about the McWherter vacancy until after the May 21 primary.

Organization Backing

Nevertheless, it was figuring prominently in all the political calculations being made around the courthouse in Greensburg.

The Democratic organization is backing two candidates for the regular judgeship vacancies. One is Judge Edward G. Bauer, a top leader of the organization whose first term on the bench expires this year.

The other is District Attorney L. Alexander Sculco.

Sculco, according to most observers, is being hard pressed by his former assistant, Joseph M. Loughran, who bolted the organization when it refused to back him for a judgeship.

There has been speculation that the organization could patch things up by offering the gubernatorial appointment or the party designation to Loughran.

But the party split apparently has gone too far for that.

"Nothing doing", said Chief County Detective Arthur B. "Buddy" Turner, the reputed boss of the courthouse organization, when a reporter asked him about the matter.

That means that the organization and its foes will go to the mat on May 21 with the voters rendering a decision.

But should Sculco be defeated in the primary, the organization could then use the McWherter vacancy to give the District Attorney a second chance in November. He could either be appointed to the bench by Governor Leader or be nominated by the party — or both.

Others in Field

There is little doubt but that the Governor will take the recommendation of the organization, nominally Kromer, or that the organization could control a nomination under the party rules.

Another Democratic candidate is in the field. He is James L. McWherter, nephew of the late Judge. But he is not given much chance by most observers.

The two registered Republicans who are running for judge are expected to have little difficulty winning the GOP nominations in the May 21 primary. They are Ayra N. Pershing, Jr., and Robert Rial, both of Greensburg.

The consensus today is that Pershing and Rial will be nominated on the Republican ticket and that Judge Bauer and either Sculco or Loughran will be the Democratic nominees.

Although all six candidates have cross-filed, it would be a definite surprise were the party lines to be penetrated.

Both Kromer and Swink said many names have been mentioned in connection with the McWherter vacancy. But both made it plain that, until after the primary, there will be nothing but talk.

Carbon Monoxide Blamed in Death

Slayer of Judge Asks Court for New Trial

PHILADELPHIA (UP) — Attorney for Norman Moon, convicted in the fatal shooting of a Warren County judge and sentenced to death, yesterday asked the state Supreme Court to grant a new trial.

Edward Dumbauld, Uniontown, claimed Moon was denied a fair trial, that certain exhibits were improperly admitted as evidence, and that the lower court erred in its charge to the jury.

The plea was opposed by Deputy Attorney General Frank P. Lawley Jr.

Moon who pleaded insanity, was convicted of murder in the first degree in the courtroom shooting of Judge Allison D. Wade on Jan. 13, 1954. Although a sanity commission later found him mentally ill and recommended he be committed to an institution, the lower court ordered the death penalty. The state Supreme Court later upheld the sentence.

Dumbauld's plea yesterday claimed the lower court failed to rule "properly" in selecting jurors and "sought" to rehabilitate jurors in order to expedite the preliminaries of the trial."

Lawley countered that there was "nothing to indicate that counsel was not in every way satisfied" with the selection of the jury or that the defense was "in anyway prejudiced."

Dumbauld also took exception to the admission as evidence a photograph of Judge Wade's corpse. He also objected to a police memorandum on an interview with Moon while he was in a hospital recuperating from a neck wound inflicted by himself after the courtroom shooting.

He claimed the photograph was "prejudicial and inflammatory" and that it was "unnecessary" since it was shown after the testimony of the Warren County coroner.

Dumbauld also said the memorandum was not signed or witnessed and that Moon was "barely conscious" when the interview took place.

"A policeman may testify from his own recollection (of what transpired) but memorandum itself is not permissible as evidence," Dumbauld said.

Lawley argued that "in almost every murder case, photographs of the victim are introduced in evidence."

"The mere fact that a photograph may militate against the accused is no ground for rejecting it," he said. Concerning the memorandum, Lawley said there was a "large amount of testimony" on the circumstances surrounding the interview. He said both a physician and a nurse testified that as far as they knew Moon was in good condition and seemed to have "possession of his full mind."

Dumbauld said the lower court erred in its charge to the jury because it omitted "all reference to the requirement that defendant must be able to appreciate the nature and quality of his act."

"The omission seriously misled the jury," Dumbauld claimed.

Lawley claimed the charge was correct since it pointed out that "if defendant proved by a fair preponderance of the evidence that he was not legally responsible for killing judge Wade, he should be found not guilty on grounds of insanity."

The court took the appeal under advisement.

Head of Publishers' Group in Attack on U. S. Red China Ban

NEW YORK (UP) — William Dwight, president of the American Newspaper Publishers Assn., charged today that the U.S. government is responsible for keeping the Bamboo Curtain around Red China.

In a strong attack on the State Department's ban on travel by American newsmen in China, Dwight told the ANPA's 71st annual convention that the government's policy runs counter to "the people's right to know—a precious right inherent in our way of life." He promised that the ANPA would continue to oppose this policy "at the highest level."

Wants Travel Freedom

Dwight, who is president of the Holyoke (Mass.) Transcript - Telegram, said the ANPA has asked the President, the secretary of state and Congress "that newspapermen who are American citizens and are employed by American publications and newsgathering services to gather and write news or express opinion on facts be accorded by our government freedom to travel for that purpose in any country in the world with which the United States is not at war."

"ANPA has in mind particularly the granting of the right to go to Red China and report back to the American people," he said. "The Bamboo Curtain now hangs by order of our government between us and Red China."

Dwight's speech at a general meeting of delegates marked the second day of the convention at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel. More than 1,200 publishers from the United States, Canada, Hawaii and Puerto Rico are attending the various sessions dealing with all phases of daily newspaper publication. The convention ends Thursday.

Get Newsprint Report

The delegates heard Charles W. Boyce, ANPA newsprint consultant, outline in detail the dangers inherent in the current tight supply of newsprint in a period of record expansion in circulation and advertising. He said increased production of newsprint probably would equal the ANPA's estimate of demand through 1960, but "what happens after 1960 depends entirely upon the willingness and ability of manufacturers to expand production."

Dwight reported that newsprint inventories at present are "in reasonably safe shape," but there is still "very little leeway between demand and supply." He said the slightest unanticipated increase in publishing requirements could have "serious consequences" for many publishers.

"The price of newsprint has been increased to new peak levels," Dwight said. "It doesn't require a C.P.A. to conclude that some newspapers are being pushed to the limit of their economic endurance. There can come the time when the burden of this cost will become so excessive that newspapers will be compelled to reduce their use of newsprint."

Dulles to Make Trip to Bonn Next Tuesday

WASHINGTON (UP) — Secretary of State John Foster Dulles will fly to Germany next week for important Allied talks on Moscow's recent atomic threats and Britain's proposed defense cuts, it was learned today.

Administration officials said Dulles plans to leave Washington on Tuesday for Bonn, Germany, where the North Atlantic Treaty Organization (NATO) Council holds its spring meeting May 2-3-4.

Moscow's recent campaign of atomic threats against America's NATO partners gives extra importance to Dulles' mission. His job will be to reassure this nation's 14 NATO associates the United States will not forsake them in the face of Russia's threats.

The first step in Dulles' campaign was taken in his foreign policy address in New York earlier this week. He noted Soviet rulers were pouring out "abuse and threats" as the free nations strengthen their defenses.

"But we can, I think, be confident that such Soviet assaults will not disintegrate the free world," Dulles said. "Collective (defense) measures are here to stay."

Ike to Play Golf Between Important Talks

AUGUSTA, Ga. (UP)—President Eisenhower probably will get in his usual round of golf today in an interim between two important conferences of his current vacation.

The President intends to confer with Secretary of Labor James P. Mitchell at the vacation White House Thursday morning about anti-racketeering bills to be submitted to Congress. Mitchell is scheduled to arrive here by plane tonight.

Presidential press secretary James C. Hagerty said Eisenhower had no announced conferences today and probably will get in a round of golf as he did late Tuesday.

The President had conferred earlier Tuesday with Disarmament Adviser Harold E. Stassen on progress of the London five-power conference to which Stassen returned immediately.

Big Fire Loss in Canada and U. S.

BOSTON (UP)—Big fires in the United States and Canada in 1956 caused an estimated $330,156,000 loss—the worst in history.

The two countries reported 430 large fires last year with individual loss of at least $250,000. And 36 of them caused one million dollars or more damage.

The report was released today by the National Fire Protection Association in its annual study of fires in North America.

Industrial fire losses topped the unprecedented fire destruction. More than 100 large loss industrial fires where reported and 14 large loss church fires equalled the total number over the preceding three years.

Van Bremen Says School Jointure 'Working Well'

The Bellmarette school jointure "has worked out very well", according to Supervising Principal Robert VanBremen.

VanBremen was the speaker at the weekly meeting of the Monessen Rotary Club at Johnson's yesterday.

The new school district was formed six years ago through a combination of the Belle Vernon, North Belle Vernon, Fayette City and Washington Twp. school systems.

VanBremen said the jointure has made possible many services to pupils which the smaller districts were unable to provide. These include guidance and special supervisors for art and music.

A speech correctionist will be added to the staff next year, he said.

He pointed out that the Bellmarette system is free of debt and enjoys substantial annual savings to local taxpayers through higher subsidies by which the state encourages jointures.

Building Planned

Two new construction projects, one at Bellmar High School and the other at Marion Junior High, will get underway this summer, VanBremen said. Both are being carried out by the state School Building Authority, to which the Bellmarette district will pay an annual rental for the use of the facilities.

VanBremen pointed out that each of the four smaller districts continues to function with its own board of school directors. And each board is a part of the larger joint board.

The individual districts pay a proportionate share, based on the number of pupils, of the cost of the joint system.

Speaking of discipline problems, VanBremen said, "We still use the rod when we feel it is necessary."

"There are some cases in which it definitely helps," he said, "and we do not hesitate to use it in those cases."

VanBremen, who has been associated with the Washington Twp. schools and with the Bellmarette jointure for a total of 30 years, was introduced by one of his former pupils, Fred Stockus.

New Industrial Projects Number 448 in State

HARRISBURG (UP)—The state Commerce Department reported today that plans for 448 new or expanded industrial projects were initiated in Pennsylvania in 1956.

The projects, some of which have been completed while others are still in the construction stage, consisted of 363 manufacturing plants and 85 other types of industrial facilities.

When completed, the projects will provide an estimated 28,571 new jobs—25,396 of them in the manufacturing industry, the department said. Of the 448 projects 223 represent expansions of established plants in the state.

"They testify to the faith of Pennsylvania companies in the advantages of Pennsylvania locations for industry, and to the importance of existing industry to the continued economic growth of the Commonwealth," the department said.

Butler Closes Schools to Most Tuition Students

BUTLER, Pa. (UP) — Butler city and Butler Twp. school authorities today advised neighboring school districts that Butler High School will be closed to all tuition students except seniors next fall.

The decision mainly affects six smaller school districts which recently blocked plans of the city, township, and East Butler to construct a multi-million dollar campus-type high school.

By refusing students from outside the city, township and East Butler areas, the Butler High student body will be reduced by 669 pupils. High school board members said it was necessary to refuse tuition students because of plans to install a cafeteria as well as substantially reduce overcrowding in classrooms.

State's Politicians Are Lampooned by Press

HARRISBURG (UP)—Pennsylvania's state officials and political leaders were the targets of parodies, skits and lampoons hurled by the Capitol Hill press corps at its 31st biennial Girdiron Show here Tuesday night.

The Pennsylvania Legislative Correspondents Association made Gov. George M. Leader the star of the "My Fair Leader" show in a take-off on the Broadway hit, "My Fair Lady."

The governor, members of his cabinet and legislative leaders were among those attending the show.

The governor's career from chicken farmer to the gubernatorial mansion and a possible campaign for a U. S. Senate seat was the subject of some good-natured kidding in the skit.

To the tune of "Wouldn't It Be Loverly" Leader, the farmer sang:

"All I want is my home and chicks
Way far out in the country sticks.
So far from politics
Oh, isn't it just loverly?"

And in the finale, Leader the governor, warned that Washington is not Harrisburg, still longs for a Senate seat in these words:

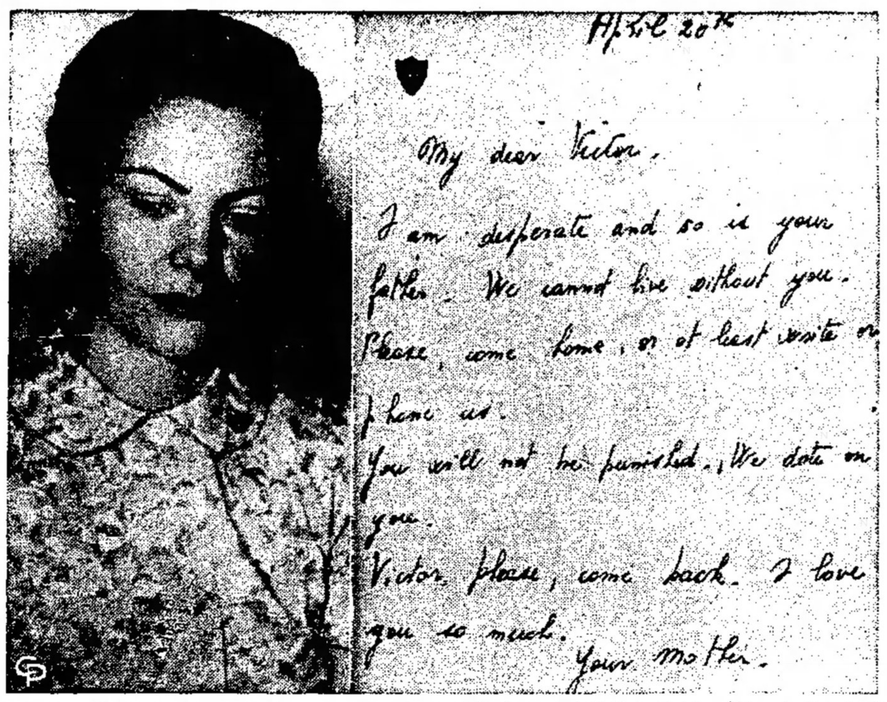
"I'll get accustomed to the place.
I've always liked its cherry trees.
I'll get accustomed to my home—inside the Dome—
Good food—French cuffs—and no Jim Duffs.

The travails of a freshman state senator were told in the "lost Bill Blues" in which the neophyte lawmaker wonders longingly what has happened to the 94 bills he has introduced.

Senate President Pro Tempore M. Harvey Taylor's influence with his fellow Republican senators was lampooned to the tune of "My Heart Belongs to Daddy." In this case it became "Our Votes Belong to 'Pop-Pop'."

The only serious note was a tribute to Dr. Jonas E. Salk, developer of the anti-polio vaccine that bears his name. Although he was unable to attend because of duties at the University of Pittsburgh, the Capitol Hill newsmen picked him as "Man of the Biennium" for his "selfless contribution to humanity."

The show was presided over by Burton W. Siglin of the Harrisburg Bureau of United Press and association president.



"VICTOR, PLEASE COME BACK . . ." — Countess Olga Barattieri (left), wife of the Italian consul general in Chicago, writes a letter to her 14-year-old son, Vitorrio, who disappeared en route to school last week. The letter (right) says in part: "I am desparate and so is your father. We connot live without you . . . Please come back. I love you so much. Your Mother."

Gulf Oil Corp. Reports Record Income for Year

PITTSBURGH (UP)—Gulf Oil Corp., predicting another "good year," estimated today its consolidated net income for the first quarter of 1957 rose to a new record of $94,938,000, equal to $3.20 per share.

The estimate was made at the the annual stockholders meeting where it was also stated that Gulf may spend more on expansion this year than the 466 million dollars spent in 1956 with "well over" 50 per cent slated for production activities.

Stockholders were told that on a world-wide basis most of the company's operations were above the first quarter of last year with the exception of runs of crude oil to domestic refiners.

The reason for the decline, Gulf said, was the fact that an average of 80,000 barrels daily of crude oil and products was shipped to Europe to meet shortages brought on by the Suez crisis.

American Window Glass Reports Loss for 1956

PITTSBURGH (UP)—American Window Glass Co., blaming depressed conditions in the sheet glass industry, today reported a net loss of $90,895 for the first period of 1956, compared to earnings of $350,227 in the same period last year.

Net sales of $3,885,626 for the three months were 43 per cent below sales of the first three months of 1956, president Otto G. Schwenk told the annual stockholders meeting.

Schwenk said the reduced demand resulted from a decline in housing construction and a "drastic increase" in imports of sheet glass in 1956.

"These factors, plus increases in material prices, freight rates and wage costs placed us in a squeeze," Schwenk said.

Schwenk said he looked for a "substantial increase" soon in sheet glass market activity as a result of second quarter housing start increases, liquidation of jobbers stocks, and declining imports.

College Help Is Proposed

HARRISBURG (UP) — Gov. George M. Leader said today he hoped to send legislation to the General Assembly this week which would help "deserving young men and women" obtain college educations.

Gov. Leader said the legislation would mark a "historic milestone" in making college educations available. He said the program would be "perhaps as significant and far reaching as any introduced at this session."

However, the governor's office did not spell out the details of the legislation and how it would finance or aid prospective college students. The office said the administration was "now completing preparation" of the legislation.

Taylor's Attack on Secretary Shapiro

M. HARVEY TAYLOR is perhaps the most respected, if not feared, politician in Harrisburg. He is president pro tempore of the State Senate and the recognized leader of the Republicans in both houses of the legislature, which the GOP now controls.

Senator Taylor seldom makes public speeches, not because he can't make them, probably, but because he doesn't need to. A whisper from behind Senator Taylor's venerable hand can pack more punch where it counts than a full-dress oration by almost any other state senator you could name. He's that kind of politician.

So when Senator Taylor makes a full-dress speech, which he did on Monday, people are inclined to pay attention. The man is probably agitated about something, and his agitations have been known to bring things to pass.

In this case Senator Taylor is agitated about the Secretary of Welfare, Harry Shapiro, who happens to have served in the State Senate at one time, too. The Taylor speech sharply attacks Secretary Shapiro's operation of the Welfare Department, particularly its much publicized mental health program.

The Senator's particular beef seems to be what he calls "the social worker clique" in the department. He charges that appropriations for mental hospitals are actually being reduced in favor of "soft jobs" for "social workers", who he says are not sincerely interested in the welfare of the mentally ill.

FROM WHAT we have seen and heard of Secretary Shapiro's program, we would be inclined to regard Senator Taylor's speech as a rather routine lament of a professional politician. And this opinion is reinforced when we recall that it was under a succession of Republican administrations, in which Senator Taylor had great influence, that Pennsylvania's neglect of the mentally ill became a national scandal.

Secretary Shapiro, who we thought began his work in the Leader administration a little too brashly for his own good, has nevertheless been developing a program which has the earmarks both of sincere concern for the afflicted people involved and of considerable intelligence. It has, in fact, been one of the few noteworthy performances of the Leader regime.

Secretary Shapiro has been trying first of all to remedy the serious shortage of trained personnel — doctors, nurses and other attendants — in this highly specialized field of public medicine. For without these it would be impossible to institute modern methods of treatment in the state hospitals.

These people, no doubt, make up the "social worker clique" to which Senator Taylor refers. But give them whatever name you will, it is no more than common sense that any effective program to deal with mental illness must be based on a corps of professional people who owe their jobs, not to the politicians, but to their skills.

NO DOUBT Secretary Shapiro has made some mistakes, and probably he will make some more. And we would not deny that some people who come under the classification of "social worker" can be less than completely dedicated to the cause they serve.

But the people of Pennsylvania had reason to be ashamed of the manner in which their state government was treating the mentally ill people in its care. And they wanted something of a major nature done to correct the conditions which were brought to their attention.

This Secretary Shapiro has been doing. And while Senator Taylor and others may well be able to discover errors both of commission and omission, we think it is accurate to say that the general direction which Mr. Shapiro has taken is both good and has the support of the public.

Humphrey to Stay

THE DENIAL by Secretary of the Treasury George Humphrey of published reports that he plans to leave the government soon will not be welcome to most Americans.

Men who have made their marks in business and finance do not always come off quite so well in Washington where the techniques, if not the principles, are apt to be a bit different than they are in the business world.

But Secretary Humphrey, who never had held a political job before, has done exceedingly well. It is generally conceded that his expert knowledge of money and the part it plays in the economy and his trained judgment of men had much to do with the stable periods as which have marked the Eisenhower administration.

So we hope Mr. Humphrey means to stay a while longer. The President needs him and so does the country.

Merry-Go-Round—

Ike, Benson Draft New Farm Plan

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON — President Eisenhower and Secretary Benson have a new farm program about ready to spring on the farmers. It will probably mean the end of all farm price supports.

Mr. Pearson

Meeting with Republican leaders in Congress last week, the President gave a preview of the plan. He described the present farm price support program as a vicious circle. When crop surpluses are disposed of abroad, he pointed out, the law requires that domestic price supports increase.

"This means that farmers increase their production and we have more surpluses," said the President. "If our present laws are inadequate to deal with this situation, then they ought to be changed. We are not wedded to any program, if it isn't working."

Secretary Benson, who attended the meeting, agreed that his flexible program hadn't worked out as well as he had hoped, but he contended that this was partly because of "mandatory provisions" still in the law, establishing 75 per cent minimums for price supports on basic crops — corn, wheat, cotton, rice and peanuts.

An over-all review of the crop price and surplus situation would be made with an eye to corrective legislation, Benson reported. Farm organizations would be consulted. However, he emphasized that Congress should assume a great part of the responsibility. He didn't want to be left carrying the ball alone, declared the Secretary of Agriculture.

Big Farmers Profit

Another objection raised by Eisenhower was the high cost to the taxpayers of maintaining the current Benson program, as reflected by the Agriculture department's budget of $5,300,000,000. In this connection, congressional leaders reported that some farm senators felt that the cost of sending surplus farm goods abroad should be charged to the foreign aid program, not the farm program.

Eisenhower said he was opposed to this, pointing out that farmers "get the benefit of the surplus disposal program."

The President also contended that the bulk of the benefits under the present program were going to big farmers, and that "the small farmer isn't getting his rightful share." One reason for this, it was brought out, was that big farmers could make a living out of Benson's soil bank program, even if they take a large part of their soil out of production — something little farmers cannot afford to do.

NOTE 1: Farm organizations report that big farmers and "absentee" city farmers are engaged in a wave of land buying, then putting these acres into the soil bank.

NOTE 2: It wasn't mentioned at the White House meeting, but some GOP politicos say they're tired of appeasing the farm bolt, believe it's better to let farm prices drop and get political credit with consumers and housewives for lower prices.

Inside Jordan

Here is more of the inside story on why King Hussein suddenly got up enough nerve to fire his pro-Communist premier and army chief.

King Saud of Saudi Arabia telephoned the 22-year-old king, pledging that his troops would rush to the latter's aid in case of any fighting. He told King Hussein that he could consider himself commander-in-chief of the 3,000 Saudi troops already stationed in Jordan and that they would fight to the death for him.

This dramatic phone call gave Hussein the courage he needed to crack down on pro-Russian leaders and take over as the real boss of Jordan. So it looks as if Ike's entertainment of King Saud has begun to pay off.

Diplomatic Pouch

Prime Minister Nkrumah of the new Negro nation of Ghana has asked President Eisenhower to name a white man instead of a Negro as American ambassador. Nkrumah wants a top-flight career diplomat sent to his country because he believes a white ambassador's recommendations would pack more weight than those of an American Negro politician. The man he will probably name is career officer Wilson Flake. . . Moscow may be facing another Hungary — this time in the Baltic. Anti-Russian riots are sweeping the tiny Baltic states of Estonia, Latvia, and Lithuania. Moscow has moved in troops and police. Several hundred patriots have been arrested. . .

And This Is Why It Works in Washington

From Washington—

The Red Cross in Peril

By ROSCOE DRUMMOND

The Red Cross, which yearly aids millions of Americans, needs aid; it is in perilous danger. It is in danger of not receiving the public support needed to perform its duties. Now, nearing the end of its annual campaign, it is $20,000,000 short of its $95,000,000 budget for this year.

To help this great humanitarian cause — the cause of enabling man to be his brother's keeper" — this column today offers itself to Gen. Alfred M. Gruenther, Red Cross president.

Question — Why did you become president of the Red Cross after returning from the exacting job as Supreme Commander at NATO?

Gen. Gruenther — The more I have watched the Communist threat develop the more convinced I am that we cannot have true security by military or economic strength alone. We must be able to make crystal clear, to our Allies and to the uncommitted peoples our dedication to the spiritual values which spring from our religious [illegible] — loving your neighbor" — one of the foundation stones of our way of life — represents an element of strength which must continue to increase. I believe this firmly.

Question — You described the Red Cross financial picture as the bleakest since World War II. Why is the Red Cross having such a hard time reaching its goal this year?

Gen. Gruenther — Probably because a great many people do not realize that we must raise $10,000,000 more than last year — because the great number of major disasters in recent years had reduced our operating funds to a dangerously low level. Also, there is a keen competition for the contributor's dollar.

In the year ending June 30, 1956, the Red Cross spent $33,193,000 for disaster aid, eight times the average. Our disaster reserve is now completely gone and our general fund reserve is reduced to less than the equivalent of two months budget.

We are still in the midst of the year's heaviest disaster months. This is an extremely critical situation.

Question — How does the Red Cross help the victims of a disaster?

Gen. Gruenther — During the disaster emergency, the Red Cross shelters the homeless, feeds victims and emergency workers, provides clothing, if needed, and emergency medical and nursing assistance, answers inquiries from relatives and friends.

After the emergency, the Red Cross gives to those victims who could not otherwise return to normal living such long-term assistance as re-building and repairing homes, helping obtain household furnishings, occupational supplies and equipment. It provides long-term medical and nursing assistance, and, if necessary, pays the rent and provides family food orders while the breadwinner may be temporarily out of work, due to the disaster.

Outright Fraud

This aid is given as an outright grant, not a loan, to all victims unable to recover through their own resources. It is a gift of the American people through the Red Cross, an assurance to those who suffer that they were not alone.

Question — What do you consider Red Cross' most valuable public service?

Gen. Gruenther — It depends on your point of view. If I were a disaster victim who had lost everything in a flood and the Red Cross provided me with a new home and food and clothing for my family, then I would say disaster relief.

If I had been saved from drowning by a person skilled in Red Cross first aid and water safety techniques, then I would say safety services.

If I were a soldier overseas with a wife ill back in the States and the Red Cross visited my wife and helped her, then I would say services to the armed forces.

If I were a parent concerned about the proper use of my youngster's leisure time, or if I were a boy or girl seeking useful outlets for my energy, then I would say the Junior Red Cross.

If I were a person dying for want of blood, then I would say the blood program.

If I were concerned for the welfare of Hungarian refugees in Austria, then I would say the international program.

No Government Funds

Question — Red Cross is chartered by act of Congress to help people in disaster. Does the Red Cross get any government funds?

Gen. Gruenther — No.

Question — Why should people give to the Red Cross?

Gen. Gruenther — The Red Cross is the people. It is concerned with their health, their safety, their well-being.

It includes the millions who benefit from its humanitarian services, and the millions of volunteer and staff workers who give these services in the 3,700 chapters across the nation and at U. S. military outposts around the world.

Its great strength is this banding together of millions of Americans who join hands in the common purpose of "neighbor helping neighbor."

The Lighter Side—

Princess Grace Is Overpowered by 'Oh!'

By DOC QUIGG

MONACO (UP) — Her serene Highness Princess Grace, whose career in the movies brought her into contact with some of the most compelling male personalities of our time, has found me overpowering.

I might as well admit it. I rocked her serene highness back on her heels at a cocktail party thrown by herself and Prince Rainier in the royal palace. However, it was not a matter of personal magnetism on my part.

Rather, it had to do with a do-it-yourself perfume project.

"Princess," I said, gripping my champagne glass with trembling insouciance and staring straight ahead at the bridge of her beautiful nose, "I have been to the perfume factory over in Grasse, and they let me go to the laboratory and mix up my own scent by picking and choosing from all the various essences.

Asks For Reaction

"I have named it 'Oh!' I have been getting opinions about its fragrance from various persons, and I'd like your reaction. The scent is here on the palm of my left hand. Please react."

I thrust my palm two inches from her smiling, classical face. She sniffed, and it must be recorded for Monacan history that she had the grace not to wince. She swayed slightly away, grinned and said:

"Oh! . . . Well!" The inflection she put on the word "well" is not printable. The perfume center of Grasse, France, bills itself as "Paradis de la Femme." But I got the idea that Princess Grace was transported elsewhere than paradise by my odor. She recovered nicely. Within five minutes she had regained her senses and was sparring easily with the chattering guests.

A Party for Newsmen

An invitation to a reception from their serene highnesses comes through the chamberlain, who "has the honor to inform" you on an engraved, gold-embossed card that you are "invited to assist" at the shindig and that you better be there by 6 p.m. This party was for our group of newsmen, who are being whisked by Pan American on a grand tour of Europe.

At the palace entrance, you are screened by a squad of greeters who are dressed to the nines in medals, swords, spats, and gaudy uniforms. The champagne was served in the Salle des Gardes, a room about 50 by 30 feet, with high-vaulted ceiling and heated by a big fireplace at one end. Pictures of President Eisenhower and Francis Cardinal Spellman occupy prominent positions on a center table.

Princess Grace, who now has been here one year, asked about doings in the United States, and particularly about television programs. She is immersed in care of her three-month-old daughter, Princess Caroline, who, she says, is growing so fast that "she seems changed every morning."

The Cynic's Corner—

The Peoples Forum—

Committee Opposes Water Fluoridation

To the Editor:

A group of Mon valley citizens interested in individual rights and the future health of our people have organized the Committee Investigating Fluoridation.

The Committee has been studying and compiling reputable testimony of qualified scientists and physicians, and other pertinent data, relative to the "artificial fluoridation" of communal water supplies.

The Committee observes that rather extensive critical reviews of the artificial fluoridation program have been published by outstanding scientists which point out that the evidence supporting the effectiveness and the safety of artificial fluoridation is not "conclusive".

In general, the accumulating testimony and scientific facts now mounting against artificial fluoridation are reviewed for careful study and most serious consideration of all peoples concerned. They are as follows:

(1) The data submitted by the proponents of artificial fluoridation to prove the safety of the measure is unreliable and controverted by scientific and medical information on record. Cases of chronic fluorine poisoning from drinking artificially fluoridated water at the so-called "safe concentration" are appearing throughout the country.

(2) The data submitted to prove the claims that dental caries are reduced by the measure are contradictory and questionable. Statistics compiled by the New York State Department of Education show one-third more dental defects among children in the test city of Newburgh, N. Y., whose water is artificially fluoridated, than in the control city of Kingston, N. Y., whose water is fluorine-free.

Called 'Poison'

(3) Sodium fluoride, the substance added to the drinking water, is a highly toxic, cumulative poison. It is 85 per cent more toxic than the calcium-fluorine combination found in naturally fluoridated waters in many areas of the country.

A committee of professors of the Wayne University Medical School reported to the Detroit Common Council in 1950:

"Sodium fluoride is an extremely poisonous substance, even more so than arsenic; its addition to the water supply cannot be undertaken without creating certain possible hazards to the public. . . ."

Radio-active-tracer studies showed that no matter how minute the dose, fluorine is always cumulative.

(4) The water supply is not a practical or efficient vehicle for administering the "proper dosage", or controlling the "safe dosage". One milligram of fluoride from four glasses of fluoridated water consumed daily, from all sources, is considered as a "safe dosage". Human consumption of water may vary as much as 20 to 1 depending on individual taste, age climate, state of health, and type of work. This narrow margin of safety makes the program a calculated risk of adverse effects. No studies have been made of the effects of fluoridated water on the old age, pregnant woman, those with impaired kidney function or the diabetic.

(5) The proponents state that 10 to 20 percent of our youngsters drinking fluoridated water can expect to have "mottled teeth". This they classify as "not objectionable". But, "mottling" is a permanent and irreparable disfigurement of teeth, and is the first indication of the disease of fluorine poisoning. Seventy-eight cases out of 438 examined in the test city of Newburgh, N. Y., showed "mottled-enamel".

'Mass Medication'

(6) Artificial fluoridation is mass-medication without parallel in the history of medicine. If fluoridation were adopted the entire population would be compelled to drink poisoned water over a life-span whether they want it or not, or whether it would harm them. This is considered by many as an invasion of their constitutional rights. The basic human right of the individual to determine what is put into his body, or what is done to his body is a God-given right which cannot be abrogated just to conform to the theories of a portion of the community even if that portion be a majority.

(7) There are safer, more economical, and more positive methods available to improve dental health. From all this, the Committee poses these questions:

Why the persistent, domineering and dogmatic demand that we adopt artificial fluoridation when other methods of this "water-treatment" are available to those who want it? What right have they to impose it on a neighbor who doesn't want it and who knows from the abundant and incontrovertible documentary evidence that it will harm him? (Unless, of course, there is lurking in the background other interests considered more important than the health of the people and better dental health for our children.)

The Committee further stresses the burden to prove that artificial fluoridation is safe beyond any reasonable doubt remains with those who advise and endorse such a program. They must assume the full responsibility for any harm.

It is the conclusion of the Committee that the question of artificial fluoridation will not be resolved by "promotional endorsements" but it will — and must — be resoundingly rejected when the public investigates the fallacy of this health measure, for what it really is. At least 85 cities have thrown out fluoridation after trying it, totalling approximately two million population. More than 330 waterworks (consisting of about 2,000 communities with a total population of over 30 million) have refused or rejected it.

The committee urges all citizens to make a careful study and to give the most serious thought to the program of artificial fluoridation. Their very health and human rights are at stake. Anyone interested is invited to make himself a part of "The Committee Investigating Fluoridation".

(Editor's Note—Mrs. Holowach, in submitting the above letter for publication, informs us that the Committee Investigating Fluoridation consists of "about 30" people living in Donora, Charleroi and Monessen. The three communities are served by a common water supply. A committee to promote fluoridation has been established in Monessen.)

Bob Petty Farmed to Kokomo, Ind.

Bob Petty, the former baseballer and basketballer at Monessen High, has been assigned by the Brooklyn Dodgers to their Class D club at Kokomo, Ind., in the Midwestern League. He will work under manager Pete Reiser, the former Dodger outfielder who was noted for his frequent collisions with the outfield wall. Petty, a lanky 6-4 pitcher, throws awfully hard . . . There will be no WPIAL soccer playoff this season. That means Monongahela High is a shoo-in for the title again. The once-beaten Wildcats are currently atop the standings and only a complete collapse will keep them from protecting their crown.

Fuzzy Anderson, standout member of the Monessen USW mound corps, has this rib-tickling comment when asked what team he plans to play for in the Mon Valley League this season: "I'm waiting to see which team has the best infield. That's the club I'll pitch for." . . . Incidentally many tried-and-tested MVL stars (including several from Monessen) are playing hard to get. The word is out that a couple of teams plan to cuff over some money. And the veterans want to be in on it if true . . . Speaking of recruiting, Manager Ralph Nicksich of Monessen USW is trying to lure back former Pirate pitcher Jake Martin of Fayette City.

MFL Fund Campaign Off to Good Start

That fund-raising campaign of the Monessen Midget Football League is off to a fine start. Stephen Pfeister, Recreation Board chairman, started the ball rolling by buying $6 worth of tickets. And at the Page plant office, Alex Kachmarik collected $50 in a couple of hours . . . The money from the MFL drive will be used to finance the construction of concession stands at Memorial Stadium. The long-range plan is for parents of the players to operate the stands in the future. The revenue from the operation should be enough to keep the league going without the necessity of any future public solicitation.

Fred Wilkes, all-around athlete at Brownsville High who stands 6-4, has won an academic scholarship to the University of Pennsylvania. Wilkes, son of Rev. and Mrs. F. D. Wilkes, dropped off the Brownie basketball squad to devote more time to the books and apparently his decision paid off. He plans to resume his sports career at Penn in September . . . Reportedly Centerville's brilliant footballer, Robert (Red) Worrell, has even received an offer from UCLA. Married and the father of a daughter, Worrell still hasn't made his mind up on a future college education.

Barton Is LL Player Agent Again

Once again John Barton will serve as player agent for Monessen's eight Little League teams. He has charge of registrations, tryouts and the annual draft. All trades and releases must be worked through him . . . Lloyd Francheschi of Charleroi and Don Rhoades of West Brownsville have been okayed by the PIAA as baseball officials . . . At its last meeting, the PIAA Board of Control discussed the possibility of staging the 1959 track and basketball championship events in Pittsburgh to coincide with the city's bicentennial observance. However no decision was reached. There was opposition from some members who pointed to "loss of revenue and disappointment of spectators" if the title basketball game were staged in the 5200 seat Pitt Field House.

Today's Sports Parade —

No 'Fixes' in Harness Racing, Says Driver

By OSCAR FRALEY

NEW YORK (UP) —There are a number of sports about which you constantly hear suspicions that the "fix is in" and it pains young Stanley Dancer that harness racing is one of them.

If you are one of the 10,533,113 fans who bet an amazing $531,837,847 on the trotters and pacers last year you may have heard those charges. You might even be one of those who made them when the favorite goes into a "break" or winds up fourth, nowhere.

But Dancer, the third leading money winner last year, will hear none of it.

In 6,000 Races

"I have driven in 6,000 races in the past 10 years," says this handsome, dark - haired horseman from New Egypt, N. J., "and I can truthfully say I don't believe there has been anything 'wrong' in any of them. If there had been, I'm certain I would have heard about it or, at least, had a feeling about something being off color."

There is, he insists, simply too much at stake in an era in which harness racing has become big business. The malefactor can lose his license for life or, if detected fixing or cheating, can cost all his owners.

As example Dancer cites what is known as a "stable star." He handles close to 60 head for some 35 owners at a per-horse cost of $4,000 annually. Getting that expenses and 10 per cent of the winnings, the trainer - driver has a real good thing going for him without sewing up a race in quick scheme.

"Sometimes I feel that we'll never be able to convince the public that this is strictly on the level," he says glumly. "What they don't understand is that if every horse ran true to form—or one-two-three as expected — there wouldn't be any sense in wagering."

There are a number of factors any a favorite loses—namely loss of form or soundness, bad post position or bad racing luck, overhopes of last year's winnings instead of the true criterion of this year's performances, too abrupt a move up in class or the public fallacy of betting on the driver instead of the horse.

Indicative of betting the driver was a recent race in which Dancer was driving a horse named Flying Pence against a horse called Gay Dancer. A week earlier Dancer's horse had been beaten by the consistent Gay Dancer. But the fans made Flying Pence — or Dancer—the choice at 90 cents to a $1 while Gay Dancer went off at $4.20 to $1.

Bob Baker No Longer 'Rated'

NEW YORK (UP)—Bob Baker, Neal Rivers, Ramon Fuentes and Gil Cadilli were among the boxers dropped from the top ten in latest monthly Ring Magazine ratings released today.

Baker, the big Pittsburgh heavyweight who has been in and out of the ratings several times, was replaced by Willi Besmanoff of Germany, who beat him at New York a few weeks ago. Rivers dropped out of the middleweight rankings and Bobby Boyd of Chicago regained a spot among the top ten. George Barnes of Australia took 10th place among welterweights, dropping Fuentes out, and Mexico's Kid Anahuac is rated 10th among the feathers, with Cadilli out.

For the most part, there were only minor changes from last month's ratings. Joey Giambra advanced from seventh to sixth in middleweight ranking, changing places with Joey Giardello, and Del Flanagan and Vince Martinez exchanged sixth and seventh places among welters, with Flanagan ahead now.

Spieser Drops

Chuck Spieser of Detroit, first-ranked light-heavy challenger last month, was fifth this month after his kayo by Tony Anthony, who was named "fighter of the month."

Lightheavy champ Archie Moore was dropped from fifth to eighth among heavyweights since he hasn't been active, and Dai Dower of Wales, fifth among flyweights last month, dropped out of the ratings this month because of his one-round kayo by champ Pascual Perez and Dower's subsequent announcement of temporary retirement.

Boxing Law Goes to House

HARRISBURG (UP)—The state House of Representatives today received Senate-approved amendments to the state Boxing Code which would require all professional boxers in Pennsylvania to wear eight-ounce gloves, regardless of their weight classification.

The code presently requires five ounce gloves in lightweight matches and six-ounce gloves in all other classes.

The measure, sponsored by the state Athletic Commission, would also limit professional fighters to no more than one fight a week in main or semi-final events, and to no more than one exhibition bout every five days. Amateurs would be allowed to participate in two boxing tournaments a week, but would be restricted to three bouts per day.

Ed Gombos Stars With Illini Gymnasts

Ed Gombos, a former gymnastic star for the Monessen Sokols, is swinging his way through the University of Illinois.

Ed is the star sophomore member of the Illini gym team which many describe as the greatest group of collegiate gymnasts ever assembled.

Ed Gombos

Coach Charles Pond, the Illini coach who had directed three NCAA championship clubs, claims the current teams is the finest by far.

Gombos has yet to be beaten in college competition at his specialty, the horizontal bar.

And in most Illini meets this season, he's wound up as the top point-getter, demonstrating all-around skill.

Fine Student

Ed is doing just as well in the classroom, too. He has the best scholastic average on the team, a 4.1 rating. At Illinois, a perfect score is 5.0.

Gombos reached college because of his gym talents. Part of his scholarship is being financed by the Sokols, and part by the university.

His fine academic average has tickled the local Sokols even more than his splendid gym skill.

Ed is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Steve Gombos, Sr., of 414 Second St. He took part in no varsity athletics at Monessen High but stayed close to the sports scene as a student announcer.

In his sophomore year at MHS, Gombos took an interest in gymnastics at the Monessen Sokol Hall. His progress was truly amazing.

Five Trophies

In a couple of years, he was regarded as the district's finest junior gymnast. He has five championship Sokol trophies to testify to his skill.

Bellmar Trips Donora In Baseball, 8 to 6

Canes Nip Last-Inning Rally By Dragons to Post Second Win

Bellmar High's baseballers nipped a last-inning rally at Donora yesterday to score an 8-6 win in Section 17 play.

The triumph evened off the Canes season record at two wins and two losses.

Going into the final frame, the Bellmar boys led comfortably, 8-3. However the host Dragons rallied on a couple of walks, fielders choice, error and single by Dave Russell to tally three runs before the Canes slammed the door.

Lupori Goes Route

Bellmar's Conrad Lupori worked the route to earn the pitching win. He helped his own cause with two timely singles.

Larry Petras was pretty handy at bat, too, for the Canes with a pair of doubles.

Donora opened the scoring in the first inning on three successive singles which produced two runs.

In the second, Bellmar counted on three walks and a fielders choice. The Canes moved ahead in the third when Petras singled and Fred Mollard tripled him home. An error later permitted Mollard to score.

Score Three Runs

In the fourth, the Canes shoved over three runs on an error, double by Petras, a walk and single by Lupori.

The Bellmar boys tagged on two more runs in the sixth on back-to-back doubles by Bud Gardner and Petras, plus a single by Lupori.

Brown Smashes 220 Mark at College Field

Felton Brown, Monessen's freshman contribution to the Westminster College track team, set a new record at historic College Field yesterday in a dual meet with Washington-Jefferson.

Brown ran the 220 yard dash in 22.3 seconds to pace the Titans to an 89-42 triumph over the Prexies.

Brown also placed first in the 100 yard dash, covering the distance in 10 seconds flat.

Another Stadium record was smashed when the Titan mile relay team was clocked in 3.32.2.

Brown, whose father Felton has been active in Monessen sports for many years, is just 18. Track coaches feel he will be truly great once he reaches his full potential.

Monongahela Hi Without Home Baseball Field

Monongahela High School found itself without a baseball field today.

The Wildcats have played all home games for years at Quinn Park in New Eagle. However that diamond was closed today as workmen began erecting a tipple for a new coal mine.

Monongahela school authorities have rescheduled all remaining home games to Van Voorhis. Tomorrow the Cats will play host to Bellmar at that site.

The New Eagle team in the Mon Valley League is also without a field.

However Manager Frank Furiga has announced that he intends to retain the community's long-time franchise in the Mon Valley League. Furiga had indicated that he will request MVL officials to schedule all away games for his club this season.

In the meantime, Furiga is looking for a new diamond site.

Quinn Park will be the location of a giant tipple which will service the new mine operation of the United States Steel Corp.

DOCTORING YOUR GOLF

By CARY MIDDLECOFF

Slow Backswing

"Slow down your backswing" is one of golf's most frequently heard admonitions. And it is almost always a sound one. The backswing should indeed be slow, in the sense that it should be unhurried and smooth. But it can be made too slow.

Recently, it was found out that, among the best golfers, the speed of the backswing was about one-third the speed of the downswing. This proportion was found to apply even on the short shots, when the downswing was deliberately quite slow.

I tested the theory myself, and I unhesitatingly recommend it for your swing. This one-third speed ll be fast enough for you to re- the control and feel of the bhead, but slow enough to per- you to stay on proper balance the top of the swing.

Bucs Lose Again To Giants, 1-0; Call on Friend

PHILADELPHIA (UP)— The Pittsburgh Pirates, happy to leave New York where they lost five of six games to the Dodgers and Giants, take on the Philadelphia Phillies tonight in their first night contest of the season.

Pirate ace Bob Friend, with a 1-1 mark, will take the mound against lefty Curt Simmons, who has a 0-1 chart.

The Pirates dropped their second straight game to the Giants Tuesday, 1-0, when they were limited to three hits by rookie southpaw Pete Burnside, who was ticketed for the minors only two weeks ago.

Hank Sauer singled home the run Burnside needed to outduel Ronnie Kline in the fourth inning after a 450-foot double by Willie Mays. It was the second loss of the season for Kline, who struck out six and yielded eight hits in seven innings.

Burnside faced only 32 batters. All three hits were singles—by Roman Mejias, Dick Groat and Frank Thomas.

Rigney Warns Maglie Against Throwing Duster

BROOKLYN, N. Y. (UP) —Bill Rigney is no student of foreign affairs but he warned today that there'll be "massive retaliation" if Sal Maglie, an old friend, tries to "dust off" the New York Giants.

"The first time that old bird throws one at Willie Mays and that's it," said the Giant manager before his team met the Brooklyn Dodgers for the first time this season tonight. "Just one at Willie and down go all the Dodgers — one, two, three, four and on down the line."

Rigney has assigned Max Surkont, a tough old cookie in his own right, the job of facing the National League champions tonight and one reason is that he knows the veteran right-hander won't hesitate to "dust off" the Dodgers once the manager gives the word.

"The old man's got the rep," said Rigney, referring to Maglie's repuation for "brushing back" hitters. "But we know all about him and we're not gonna put up with any of that stuff. He's gonna brush back Willie just once and the Dodgers'll spend the rest of the night on their backs."

Order Cardiograph For Ramon Mejias

NEW YORK (UP)—An electrocardiograph examination was recommended today for outfielder Ramon Mejias of the Pittsburgh Pirates who suffered a muscular spasm in his chest during Tuesday's game against the New York Giants.

Mejias was stricken with a sharp pain in his chest while trying to run out a grounder in the ninth inning. After being removed from the field on a stretcher, he was attended by Dr. Anthony Paermo, the Giants' physician, who recommended the cardiograph examination.

MHS Nine Plays Charleroi Thurs.

Greyhounds Set for Cougars in Recarded Game at Ninth St. Park

Monessen High's baseballers will resume Section 17 activity tomorrow, playing host to Charleroi.

The game was originally scheduled for last week, but was postponed at that time because of rain.

If the Hounds work in the tussle, they will be up-to-date, schedulewise. That's always an achievement in schoolboy baseball.

The Hounds have settled back into the league cellar after winning their opener from Monongahela.

Coach John Hayduk is not too dismayed, though. He started with only one regular and nobody expected higher than a last place finish anyway.

That's why Hayduk has been experimenting freely with his personnel. He intends to give every boy a chance to show his stuff, thus laying the groundwork for the future.

Bellmar Plays

One other Section 17 game has been rescheduled for tomorrow. Bellmar will appear against Monongahela at the Van Voorhis field.

The Canes have a 2-2 record at the moment and may still cause some trouble in the current race.

Coach Bap Manzini makes no secret of the fact that he's pleased with his present club. Except for a couple of bad breaks, his Bellmar lads might be at the top of the heap right now.

Big Race Will Open Season Sat. At Waterford

The $1,500 Inaugural Purse will feature the opening day program at Waterford Park race track Saturday afternoon at Chester, W. Va. Post time for the first race is 2 p. m.

The well-balanced program of nine races, ranging at distances of 5½ furlongs to 1 miles, will have the East Liverpool and the Pittsburgh races as co-features.

When the bugle blows calling the horses to the post it will launch a 59-day race meet at the one-mile Waterford track. This will be both the earliest and longest race meet ever held at Waterford. The meet runs through July 4.

One of the new additions at Waterford this year will be the film patrol movies of all the races.

The jockey colony will include Joe Snyder, Joe French, Willie Clark, C. M. Clark, A. Florio, A. Pafundi, R. Arduini, W. Amos, R. Rigby, D. Gardner and the old master, Sammy Palumbo, who has been riding in great form at Bowie and Laurel race tracks in Maryland.

New Stables

There will be many new and outstanding racing stables at Waterford this year.

The biggest is that of Trainer Shirley Payne. He checked in with 25 horses, including those owned by Arthur Godfrey, the well-known TV entertainer. Godfrey's horses include Lord Willin, Galla Star and Persuader.

Vernon Arthur will have 13 horses shooting for a share of the Waterford Park purse money. He is one of the leading trainers in the country.

William W. Smith has 12 horses owned by Wayne Kendrick, Washington, D. C. businessman. Salvatore Truppa, who has raced with good success on the New England tracks, brought in 10 horses.

MHS Track Team At Donora Today

Coach Cliff Jones' Monessen High track team will appear at Donora today for a triangular meet which will also include Charleroi.

The inexperienced Monessen thinclads haven't exactly set the world afire so far this season. They placed a distant second in meets at Brownsville and Redstone.

Today the Hounds are expected to come in last. They just don't appear to have the stuff to seriously challenge either the host Dragons or Charleroi.

First event in the meet will get underway at 2:30 p. m.

Top PRA Drivers Set To Open This Sunday

Five of the six top drivers in the Pittsburgh Racing Association last season will be back in action when the PRA season gets underway this Sunday afternoon at Heidelberg.

Herb Scott of Wexford will be back to defend the title he won last season and again will be driving for Doc Frawley of Dravosburg.

Scott, who rolled up a record 3062 points in Frawley's Thunderbird-powered racer, will open the season in the same car. But, if necessary, Frawley is ready to bring out a Lincoln-powered car on short notice.

Bigger Motor

Ed Fiola of Turle Creek, who finished strong with 1802 points for second place and won the 150-lap Tri-State championship race, will be back driving his own car but has a bigger motor.

Don Dahle, Clarion, Pa., who finished only nine points behind Fiola driving for Woody Brougher, will drive for Marshall Mariani of Cuddy, Pa., this season.

Dick Linder of Brookline, who finished fifth driving Brougher's other car, will be back driving for Woody but in the new car Brougher brought out at the end of last season which shaved a full second off the Heidelberg track record.

Unks Looking

Bob Unks of Wexford, who finished fourth in Walt (Spider) Bartosch's car, hasn't picked up a ride yet. Bartosch decided to do some of the driving himself and have Lee (Smokey) Stover do the rest.

Veteran Buddy O'Connor of Greenfield will be back with his car that finished in sixth place.

Time trials are slated for 12:30 p. m. Sunday with the first of nine races starting at 2:45 p. m. The PRA drivers will open Washington Raceway, Tuesday night, April 30; South Park, Saturday night, May 4 and Sunday afternoon, May 5 they'll shift to Claridge for the inaugural.

Monongahela Is Upset in Soccer

Monongahela High's long win streak in soccer was snapped yesterday when Snowden Twp. scored a stunning 3-2 victory.

The setback came after 21 straight wins by the Mononga-helans.

The defending WPIAL champions, already assured of a tie in their section, can redeem themselves today against Scott Twp. at Heidelberg. A win in that contest will give them the title again.

Burdette Is Cleared, Wants Public Apology

MILWAUKEE (UP) —Milwaukee Braves right-hander Lew Burdette, who was cleared of spitball charges by the National League president, today asked for a "public apology" from Cincinnati manager Birdie Tebbetts.

Burdette said he felt he was "unjustly and unfairly accused" by Tebbetts last week of being a "cheating spitballer."

"I feel Tebbetts owes me, my wife and children a public apology," Burdette said. "I've always been an honest pitcher and have never intentionally violated any rule in baseball."

When asked his reaction to Burdette's request for a public apology, Tebbetts said in St. Louis where his Redlegs were playing, "I have nothing to say," then walked away.

He then stopped and said, "no comment." As he walked further from the group of reporters, he stopped again and said, "All I did was check on the rule itself. There was nothing personal about it."

National League President Warren Giles said studies made by him and league umpires had found Burdette innocent of any wrongdoing on the mound. "Rather, Giles said, Burdette was using smart psychology, not cheating in his delivery."

He said Burdette wets his fingers before throwing the ball, but that's legal as long as he dries them before the ball leaves his hand.

Williams Off to Fast Start; Now Hitting at .423 Clip

By TIM MORIARTY

It figures to be another long summer for Boston Red Sox fans, but at least they were able to rejoice today over Ted Williams' fast getaway and the surprising errorless ball being played by their heroes.

Williams hit his second homer of the new campaign Tuesday in leading the Red Sox to a 3-1 victory over the Baltimore Orioles. He also added a run-scoring single —the 2,200th hit of his major league career—to raise his batting average to .423.

However, equally important to all Boston rooters is that the Red Sox stand out as the only errorless team in the majors after the first eight days of the season. Last year they wound up at the bottom of the American League team fielding averages with 169 errors in 155 games.

Sullivan The Winner

In Tuesday's game against the Orioles, the Boston infield handled 35 chances flawlessly. Backed up by this stout defense and Williams' hitting, Frank Sullivan easily posted his first victory of the season. The towering right-hander allowed only four hits, including a ninth inning homer by George Kell that saved the Orioles from a shutout.

While the Red Sox were protecting their errorless streak, the Chicago Cubs beat Milwaukee, 3-2, in 10 innings to drop the Braves into a first place tie with the idle Brooklyn Dodgers in the National League. Dick Littlefield, the third of four Chicago pitchers, picked up his first victory since being obtained from the New York Giants last week while Lew Burdette was the loser.

Herb Score pitched the Cleveland Indians to a four-hit, 5-0 triumph over the Chicago White Sox. The Tribe chased Billy Pierce in the third after piling up seven hits and a 3-0 lead. In avenging his opening day loss to Pierce and the White Sox, Score struck out seven and only walked two.

Rookie Hurls Three-Hitter

The New York Yankees missed a chance to take over first place from the White Sox by dropping a 3-1 decision to the Washington Senators. The Nats tied the score at 1-1 in the eighth and then won the game on Roy Sievers' two-run homer in the 10th inning that gave the Cincinnati Redlegs a 6-4 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals in a night game. Frank Robinson and George Crowe also homered for the Redlegs.

'Lights Out' Tilt To Be Completed

WASHINGTON (UP) — The Washington Senators believe it was an "act of God" that the lights wouldn't go on during the second game of last Sunday's doubleheader, but they have accepted an official ruling that the game be completed from the point of interruption.

The Senators were leading the Baltimore Orioles, 2-1, when a short circuit prevented four of the eight light towers at Griffith Stadium from being turned on at the end of five innings. The game will be completed May 27 as a preliminary to a regular night game on that date.

The completion was ordered Tuesday by American League President Will Harridge, although American Leagues rules do not provide for suspended games.

Examine Fullmer, Robinson Today

CHICAGO (UP)— Middleweight champion Gene Fullmer and challenger Sugar Ray Robinson report today for preliminary medical examinations for their May 1st title fight at the Chicago Stadium.

They'll be examined by physicians of the Illinois Athletic Commission. Robinson planned to resume his training at the Johnny Coulon Club afterward.

Fullmer, however, planned a day of rest from his training grind at Tam O'Shanter Country Club.

The Peiping People's Daily said in an editorial reported by the Communist New China News Agency that a gap has developed between the people and their Red leaders because of the upheaval of China's economic, social and cultural life under Communism.

"Bail? The lawyer says it would be a waste of our money for you to appeal."

Senate Debate On Horse Race Betting Today

HARRISBURG (UP)—The state Senate was slated to debate today the controversial bill that would permit Pennsylvanians to decide whether or not they want legalized horse race betting in the state.

The bipartisan legislation would authorize a statewide referendum next November on the question "Do you favor horse racing with legal wagering within the Commonwealth?"

Gov George M Leader said recently under questioning at a news conference that while he is personally opposed to horse race betting, he would "not stand in the way of permitting the people to express their desires on the subject."

But he expressed doubt that the measure would ever clear both branches of the Legislature.

Meanwhile, the board of directors of the Pennsylvania Council of Churches urged its 8,000 church units to "wage an unremitting campaign against . . legislation which would legalize gambling in any form whatsoever."

A similar bill reached the Senate floor during the 1955-56 session but went down to defeat after the legislators were flooded with mail expressing opposition.

Not So Anonymous

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (UP) —A court fined E. J. Selby $200 Tuesday for drunk driving. Selby is the founder of five Alcoholics Anonymous clubs here.

The Wilsons were so pleased they sang the club a duet that started: "Oh, the B36 flies at 40,000 feet."

The club honored Mrs. Wilson at a dinner as "Spunkiest Woman of the Year" in recognition of her defense of her husband against President Eisenhower last January during a fight over the National Guard.

The President criticized Wilson for calling the Guard a haven for draft dodgers. Mrs. Wilson huffed publicly that Eisenhower's comment was "uncalled for" and that she was "indignant."

Sang Special Song

Club members not only presented Mrs. Wilson with a special scroll but sang her a song:

"Oh, Jessie
"Didn't get messy,
"But she spoke her piece
so loud and strong,
"That even Eisenhower
"Had to toss a flower
"To the wife whose husband couldn't be wrong."

Wilson laughed, stamped his feet in time to the music and joined in on the choruses.

Mrs. Wilson said the dinner party and the scroll were "the nicest thing that's happened to me since I married Charlie."

The grinning white-haired defense chief told the club he was "a little proud of the way Jessie stood up for me—but not surprised." He said he has known for 45 years he isn't as smart, hard-working and competent as she thinks he is, but he "never wanted to disillusion her."

Mrs. Wilson said she "is not sorry" for her stand against Eisenhower.

"I'm glad I did it," she said. "I didn't hurt anyone, least of all the President."

Air Force Rockets Reach Record Speeds

By CHARLES CORDDRY

WASHINGTON (UP)—Air Force research rockets have reached new and still secret speeds well above 8,000 miles an hour in simulating the performance of long-range ballistic missiles.

Authorities guardedly gave details of the rocket flights today in disclosing that the United States has arrived at the "really critical period" of development in its multi-billion dollar ballistic missile program.

Imminent flight tests of prototype weapons will reveal whether the program is near the pay-off stage or is to face now-unexpected problems that will throw it off schedule.

Flight Test Phase

The Thor 1,500-mile intermediate range ballistic missile (IRBM) is expected to undergo a number of "successful launchings" from the Air Force missile test center, Patrick Air Force Base, Fla., this year under present plans. It is considered to have "entered the flight test phase."

The Atlas inter-continental ballistic missile (ICBM) is "entering into the flight test phase" and should undergo launchings this year although probably not to its full 5,500-mile range. Its ultimate speed will be 15,000 to 16,000 miles an hour and it will climb 300 to 800 miles above the earth in streaking between continents.

"Successful launches" will not mean combat units suddenly will begin to bristle with ballistic missiles. They will mean, authorities said, that barring the unforeseen there are no longer "fundamental engineering problems" to be solved.

Authorities Confident

The task is to put together the complicated rocket motors, tanks or air frames, control and guidance systems, and weapon-carrying nose cones that make up the dread vehicles.

Tests in wind tunnels and with scale models in actual flight give authorities "complete confidence" of success. They expect the forthcoming flight tests with prototypes to verify the correctness of their years of work.

NEW MACHINE SLICES CONCRETE — John Wiker, Jr., of the Peoples Natural Gas Co., of Monessen, is the pilot of this concrete-cutting machine. A sturdy carbon-tipped blade, which alone costs $150, can cut through thick concrete in a matter of minutes. The machine does away with the old-style sledge hammer or pick method which resulted in broken pieces of concrete. With the new machine, a slab is cut, lifted out while servicemen make repairs to underground lines, and then set back in. A little cement is applied to seal up the separations.

Wild Brawl Involves Fiery Peruvian Singer

HOLLYWOOD (UP)—The District attorney's office ordered full explanations today of a wild brawl involving fiery Peruvian singer Yma Sumac, her estranged husband and an assorted cast.

The brawl Tuesday was the second altercation in 16 hours resulting from strained relations between the South American beauty billed as the Inca Sun Goddess, and her musical-director spouse, Moises Vivanco, 38.

The district attorney ordered "in person" explanations from Miss Sumac; her husband; two hot-blooded Inca dancers; three private detectives and a male Peruvian harpist. The family's collie dog, Prince, had a barking-snapping role in the fracas.

The luxurious $100,000 Cheviot Hills home of Miss Sumac and Vivanco, whom she sued for divorce only a week ago, fairly trembled from the piercing screams of Miss Sumac's celebrated five-octave voice during the face - slapping, hair - pulling, head - bumping, clothes-tearing free-for-all. Some blood was drawn and at least one 220-pound private detective hit the deck.

Miss Sumac sported a black eye but was credited with uncorking some of the most resounding blows—five slaps across the face of one of her maids, Esmilia Cevailos, 15.

Photographers and reporters who followed Miss Sumac to the palatial house scrambled to safety to witness the battle royal, which they described as "a whale of a battle" with "fur flying in all directions."

The brawl lasted some 20 minutes, with time out only for name-calling and breath-catching. It was broken up by a carload of police and district attorney's men summoned to the scent.

Largest Carrier Joins the Fleet

NEW YORK (UP)—The super-carrier Saratoga, the world's largest and most powerful warship, sails today to join the Atlantic Fleet at Norfolk, Va.

The 60,000 ton Saratoga completed a four-month routine post-shakedown overhaul at the New York Naval Shipyard in Brooklyn.

The giant flattop, carrying more than 3,500 enlisted men and officers, is commanded by Capt. R. B. Moore, a native of Charlotte, N. C., and a resident of Brooklyn.

Ladies Talk Baseball Sizing Up Furniture

By SHERI GILES

CHICAGO (UP)—The ladies can talk baseball in sizing up new furniture styles this year.

The National Furniture Designs Show opened yesterday for a week's run as the baseball season gets in full swing.

The show is the spring training session for the furniture business, testing "rookie" designs and practicing new combinations.

Like the spring training camps, the trend in upholstered goods this season is the slim profile. Either "tailored," like Ted Williams, or "sculptured," like Mickey Mantle.

Or take the double or triple slugger.

The trends indicate that furniture has to be strong in that department. Pieces that can do two or three jobs are gaining in popularity. For example, serve-carts that can function as a console or a table-for-two, or a TV cabinet that doubles as the top of a bedroom chest.

Trying out for shortstop with the long reach around second base are new around-the-corner sofas and case pieces.

The flick of the pitcher's wrist finds its counterpart in displays of sofas that convert into king-size double beds—with a flick of the wrist.

The streamlining trend away from the old high-back chairs of Abner Doubleday's time is evident, too.

Most new designs in case goods and tables tend toward lighter scaling, multiple storage possibilities and versatility—qualities any big league store manager will tell you are important.

After spring training comes the competition that is for keeps. In the major leagues of retail stores, here's how the standings are expected to shape up:

At the top—contemporary style trends.

Pennant contender—early American styles.

Running strong — Italian and French provincial.

Whooping Cranes Causing Trouble

NEW ORLEANS (UP)—Zoo officials called for expert advice today on how to tend the only pair of whooping cranes in captivity and their two precious eggs.

Director George Douglass of Audubon Zoo ordered a 24-hour watch around the flood - lighted wire enclosure that is the home of Josephine and Crip to make sure the eggs are hatched.

Douglass said a wildlife expert will be brought in to supervise the incubation, which is expected to last about a month.

Last year the long - stemmed birds hatched two eggs, but one chick disappeared, presumably the victim of a predatory bird, and the other died within 47 days.

3 Memorials

In loving memory of our dear mother and grandmother, Mrs. Anna Rovnak, who died five years ago today, April 24, 1952.

Gone into the light that smileth so fair,
Gone from this earth of sorrow and care,
Resting those hands that did their best,
Gone, dear mother, gone to rest!
What is a home without our mother?
What are all the joys we meet?
When your loving smile no longer
Greets the coming of our feet.
Dearest mother, how we miss you,
Since from earth you passed away,
And our hearts are aching sorely
As we think of you today.
Sadly and deeply missed by her
Children and Grandchildren.

Young Man's Fancy Turning to Love, Even in the Soviet Union

By COLETTE BLACKMORE

MOSCOW (UP) — In spring, a young man's fancy turns to love—even in the Soviet Union.

And now, unlike the early years of the Revolution, he has the blessings of the Communist Party.

This may come as a surprise to Westerners who have concluded from the Soviet press that Russian youths believe in puritanism and think only of meeting their next production quotas.

Sure signs of spring fever now current belie such ideas. While romance is not displayed as openly as in, say, Paris, it is found along the rivers, on excursion boats and in shadowy doorways.

In Russia, the place for romance is necessarily the out-of-doors. Nobody boasts a cozy apartment for two. Lovers must flee from the prying eyes of mothers, sisters and aunts and seek their privacy in woods and fields and waterfront paths.

Love did not always have a prominent place in Soviet life. Back in the Revolution, most Communists considered romance a bourgeois fiction. They contended "love is just the biological urge to continue the species."

Love, The Loser

Devotion to the party and the job was supposed to take priority over love. If a conflict arose between the two, love was meant to be the loser. A difference of opinion between couples on how to plant potatoes was almost the occasion for ending a beautiful affair.

But now the party has rehabilitated the family and other values once considered bourgeois—including love. Their place in Soviet society is secure.

Evidence of this is the hundreds of letters sent by love-struck boys and girls to Konstantin Lapin, a self-appointed expert on love, marriage and family who runs a consulting service in the newspapers and on the radio.

The letters reveal one probable reason why the party has rehabilitated romance. It urges youths on to higher production and better grades in school.

One 17-year-old girl helping with the summer harvest wrote to Lapin about her boy friend:

"Seeing how he worked, I unwittingly tried to imitate him, and even do better than he," she wrote. "I wanted to be pretty, strong, agile and do something for the good of all. In short, I feel in love with him."

Loves Movie Actress

An 18-year-old boy described how he fell in love with a movie actress after seeing her photograph.

"This first love of my life helped me to earn an excellent grade in my graduating year and to enter the university," he said.

In past years, Soviet books and films portrayed hard-working girls who thought their lives were complete once they had received a medal for superior performance on the job.

Now, however, the heroines lean more towards the type of girl in the recent movie "Three Who went to the Virgin Lands" who expressed the lament, when she won first prize for being the best tractor driver, that her loved one did not know that she existed.

"It is all very well," she says, "but you cannot give prizes to the heart."

The modern Soviet girl looks for romance with all the trimmings—flowers, strolls in the moonlight, perfume, squirely habits of opening doors for ladies, helping them with their coats and into cars.

Social Security Deadline Date

HARRISBURG (UP)—The state Labor and Industry Department today fixed July 1 as the deadline for starting Social Security coverage programs for public workers in combination with local government retirement systems if federal coverage is desired to be retroactive.

The department explained that federal law requires that contracts for retroactive coverage must be executed not later than Dec. 13, 1957. Since two 90-day periods must elapse prior to Dec. 31 the department said that July 1 is the latest date that can be fixed for start of the program.

Social Security can be extended just after this year but coverage will be retroactive only to the year in which the contract is signed, the department said.

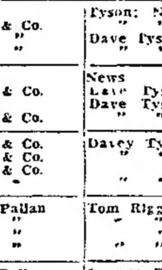
'Woolworth Hour' Will Celebrate Anniversary

By WILLIAM EWALD

NEW YORK (UP)—"The Woolworth Hour," a live, one-hour radio show which is something you can't hardly get no more, celebrates its 100th broadcast this Sunday.

It was back on June 5, 1955, that Percy Faith and a 35-piece orchestra gathered in CBS Radio's Studio 52 to launch what they believed would be a 13-week series. It was an expectation that proved happily inaccurate.



William Ewald

Since that date, "The Woolworth Hour" has dipped into musical waters as swimmy as Beethoven and bop. It has offered calypso, operatic arias, folk tunes, show tunes, rock 'n' roll and small concert pieces—a variety of melody aimed at pleasing longhairs, crewcuts and whatever degree of musical hirsuteness lies in between.

The roster of guest artists over its two-year span numbers more than 250. That list includes performers of such widely divergent talents as Dorothy Kirsten and Dizzy Gillespie, Ella Fitzgerald and Burl Ives, Bidu Sayao and Somethin' Smith.

The range of compositions has extended from such abstruse works as Alan Hovhaness' "or est of Prophetic Sound" to such transparencies as "Heartbreak Hotel."

That its formula of musical potpourri has worked may be attested by the fact that its most recent rating gives the radio show some four million listeners, a feat roughly comparable to bicycling up Mt Everest.

This Sunday, the program will present a cluth of artists that listeners have voted their all-time favorites on the hour. They represent a fair sampling of the fare the show usually offers. They include Gisele MacKenzie, Lois Hunt, Earl Wrightson and Vaughn Monroe. A pianist named Liberace will be thrown in as garnishing.

Typical "Firsts"

Faith, who as a conductor takes a large hand in the programming, sees to it that occasional meanders are taken into uncharted landscapes. As a result, the show has racked up a contrasting list of "firsts."

Elie Seigmeister's "Clarinet Concerto," Duke Ellington's jazz fantasy, "Night Creature," and an Alec Templeton quartet all were premiered on the program. Martyn Green, the Savoyard, offered for the first time in the United States a neglected Gilbert and Sullivan number and Faith also unveiled several unpublished melodies of Jerome Kern.

The show has abounded in other curiousa—a steel calypso band was unearthed for the Duke of Iron; J. J. Johnson, a jazz trombonist, serenaded his auditors with a trombonium, a slideless trombone with the bell turned skyward; Don Shirley, a pianist, tickled the keys of an $11,000 Boesendorfer concert grand piano, a machine on which Franz Liszt and Johannes Brahms had once capered and which was ferried over from Vienna.

The hour has presented outstanding soloists by the carload, but probably the favorite with the show's staff was banjoist, Harry Reser. The reason—Reser scored a hit with the sponsor.

It seems that the president of the Woolworth Company, James Lellwich, is a secret amateur banjoist who likes nothing better than to plunk out a tune himself.

Abraham Lincoln participated as a volunteer in the Black Hawk war, which began in Illinois against the Sauk chief of that name.

Your Health—

Family Attitude Can Help the Arthritic

By H. N. BUNDESEN, M. D.

Family attitude can go a long way in making things easier for an arthritis patient.

A victim of rheumatoid arthritis must remain on an even emotional keel. If a member of your family suffers this often disabling disease, you must see he has as little cause for anxiety, worry or anger as possible.

Be sure to keep all family problems and squabbles hidden from him. He'll have enough problems of his own.

If one of your loved ones has arthritis you know how easy it is for him to become discouraged. While you should be sympathetic toward the patient, it is your duty to bolster his spirits as much as possible.

Although proper and continued medical treatment might well mean the victim will have an active and useful life, there is as yet no complete cure for rheumatoid arthritis. And chances are the patient knows this.

It's a good idea, if not downright essential, to relieve the patient of all active household chores. Still, making him believe that he can't do anything at all might make his condition even worse.

You've got to help him accept the fact that it will take a long, hard fight to regain his health. His determination to conquer his illness will be a great help in the battle.

You've got to teach him to accept setbacks philosophically. And you've got to help him understand that he must follow the doctor's recommendations to the letter.

Exercise and massage, when advised, generally should be carried out at the beginning by a physical therapist. But you or some other member of the family can take over these duties eventually after getting the proper instruction.
